DYSPEPSIA.

Is that misery experienced when we suddenly become aware that we possess a diabolical arrangement called a stomach. The stomach is the reservoir from which every fibre and tissue must be nourished, and any trouble with it is soon felt throughout the whole system. Among a dozen dyspeptics no two will have the same predominant symptoms. Dyspeptics of active mental power and a bilious temperament are subject to Sick Headache; those, fleshy and phlegmatic have Constipation, while the thin and nervous are abandoned to gloomy forebodings. Some dyspeptics are wonderfully forgetful; others have great irritability of temper.
Whatever form Dyspepsia may take, one thing is certain,
The underlying cause is in the LIVER, and one thing more is equally certain, no one will remain a dyspeptic who will

TAKE SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

"My wife was a confirmed dyspeptic. Some three years ago by the advice of Dr. Steiner, of Augusta, she was induced to try Simmons Liver Regulator. I feel grateful for the relief it has given her, and may all who read this and are afflicted in any way, whether chronic or otherwise, use Simmons Liver Regulator and I feel confident health will be restored to all who will be advised." —WM. THE HABIT OF BATHING.

Its Beneficial and Injurious Effects Considered by Medical Authority.

No practice, however long established, has ever been allowed a permanent right to respect. Sooner or later its turn will come to be weighed in the critic's balance and its quality will have to be proved. Let us quote, as an illustration, the habit of daily bathing, the utility of which has of late, though not for the first time, been seriously questioned.

The reasonableness of doubt in such a matter and under ordinary circumstances, does not, we confess, commend itself to our judgment. Whether the opponents of ablution fear the shock of cold immersion, or whether they dread the cleansing stimulation thus applied to the excreting skin surface, their objection must appear to most persons possessed of ordinary health and vigor to threaten impairment of both by fostering uncleanliness. If, on the other hand, it is the too free application of heat by Turkish and other warm baths which appear objectionable, we will not deny that there is here a possible ground for complaint.

Let it not be supposed that we ignore the curative influence or the cleansing property of this method when used with judgment. It is true, however, that experience has often proved the mischievous effect of its misuse—in cases, for example, of cardiac weakness or general exhaustion. Cold bathing, in like manner, is not without its occasional risks. It is not suitable for persons enfeebled from any organic cause, though mere nervous languor is often braced and benefited by it. It has no proper place among the habits of those who are subject to chronic visceral congestions.

As regards one advantage derived from bathing—i. e., its cleansing property—there is no reasonable ground for difference of opinion. Less practiced by one people than another though it may be, there still is commonly recognizable a constant habit of ablution, and this in itself attests at least an almost universal belief in the necessity of washing. Nor can we find reason to doubt the general soundness of this belief.

In bathing temperature is, of course, a chief consideration. For the robust, cold immersion followed by rapid friction is a valuable tonic of nerve, skin and heart function. For less vigorous constitutions—those, for example, which have been tried by disease and those of young children—the addition of heat up to the temperate point is only judicious. With some persons a warm bath is a daily luxury. Notwithstanding its efficacy as a means of cleanliness, however, this custom ought to be discredited by its inevitable action as a nervous depressant, which places it in an unfavorable position compared with the more bracing practice of cold affusion.

The benefit derived from bathing, therefore, is likely to assert itself in spite of all adverse criticism, and its mismanagement, which is only too common, should not be suffered to condemn it in the eyes of any judicious and cleanly person.—London Lancet.

The Telepathic Influence.

The great diversity of the forms under which a telepathic influence manifests itself furnishes but slight reason for supposing that all cannot obey one and the same law. For we know that matter may act on matter most variously. As variously, too, may matter act on body, or body on mind—matter on matter directly, whether as mass on mass or as atom on atom, or indirectly through the earth, the atmosphere, the ether; and through the body on the mind, through our senses of touch, of taste and smell, of hearing or of sight, in ways wonderful and incomprehensible. The telepathic influence, like the material, may require time to develop itself so far as to produce a sensible effect; it may, within wide limits, be more or less intense; it may need for its manifestation very peculiar conditions. Like the influence of gravity between small masses on the earth's surface, it may be far too faint to be perceptible.—Blackwood's Magazine.

An Evidence of Taste.

A St. Antoine street mother came sniffing into the house the other morning, where her youthful son was enjoying himself in his own way.

"Johnnie," she called, "are you smoking a cigarette?"

"No'm," he answered from behind the curtains, as he threw something out of the window.

"Yes, you are, too; I smell it."

"No'm," I ain't," he insisted. "It was only a cigar stump I found in the gutter."

"Oh," she said, apparently much relieved, "I beg your pardon; but don't you ever let me catch you smoking a cigarette. Do you hear me?"

"Yes'm," and Johnnie went out and restored the stump to its previous position.—Detroit Free Press.

Electric Registering Tills.

Some time ago an electric till was brought out in England which materially decreased the possibility of tampering, and at the same time afforded an excellent check on the day's receipts. The inventor has made several improvements on the original device, which will now register accurately every coin received, from a cent to a twenty dollar piece. By a simple arrangement the till can be placed in any part of the store, unless an indicator it is said to work perfectly.—New York

The Intelligence of Elephants.

Sir Emerson Tennent relates an incident which was told him by Major Skinner, of the British army, a careful observer. The latter, anxious to observe the habits of the elephants, alone and at night secreted himself in a large tree, which stood near a drinking place that was resorted to by a herd of elephants nearly every night. He had waited several hours before the big game appeared, then he saw an enormous tusker moving out of the forest so quietly that the breaking of a twig barely told the story. Slowly the animal came on, stopping every few seconds to listen. Finally it reached the water, stepped in and listened again, then wheeled about and returned as silently as it came.

In a few moments it reappeared with five others, which it posted around the edge of the pond as sentinels; then retreated to the forest again, to return this time with the entire herd of over 100. These it left with the patrols and again advanced to the water, standing for a few moments with ears bent forward to catch the slightest sound. It was now apparently satisfied that all was safe, as it returned to the waiting herd and undoubtedly conveyed the information to them that the road was clear, as without any further hesitation the hero dashed boisterously into the water without showing any of the caution which they had displayed a short time before.

The large elephant was the leader that had gone ahead to reconnoiter, then posted the subsentinels, and finally when fully satisfied that all was right had given the word.—St Paul Dispatch.

The Capmaking Industry.

Capmakers are a fairly well paid class of workmen. The trade is minutely subdivided. One man cuts the material, another sews the peak, another blocks the crown, another sews the sides, and still another presses the seams, while the small finishing touches, such as cord and tassel, are given by girls. Work is done by the piece, and capmakers earn from fifty cents to two dollars per dozen caps. The most skillful men in busy seasons earn as high as thirty dollars a week, and occasionally men have been known to earn fifty dollars per week.

Wages however may run down to ten dollars a week or less. The season for making winter caps begins in April and ends in October. Then comes a lull, and in November begins the season for making summer caps. About three quarters of the work is done between April and October.

Materials are as varied as forms. Silks, velvets and cassimeres are some. Among the most expensive caps are those made for yachtsmen and for naval officers. The bullion embroidery adds considerably to the cost of such caps. Much of this is imported, but some of it is made by girls, who work together in small shops or at home, earning from six to fourteen dollars per week. It is one of the prettiest of the many dainty trades that flourish in the French quarter.—New York World.

Meanings of Some Old Words.

Many words once written with dignified motive now cause us to read passages of standard literature with a guffaw. The word "imp" was once a term of high honor. But how now sounds the line from Spencer, "Ye sacred imps that on Parnasso dwell?" Over many a grave of the old French nobles may be read the line, "Here lies that noble imp." A sacred poem, written by Gascoigne three centuries ago, begins a stately address to the posterity of Abraham with the words, "O Abraham's brats," brat being then a word of stately meaning.

Opening an old dictionary at random one day my eye happened to fall on the word "tragedy." A note explained that it comes from a Greek word which means "a goat song," because the oldest tragedies were exhibited when a goat was sacrificed or given as a prize to the best actor. The word "infant" means literally "not speaking." "Have you a pug dog? Did you ever think his face looks like that of a monkey? The monkey he most resembles is the pug monkey, which gets its name from Pug or Puck, as Shakespeare writes, the sprite of mischief.—Omaha World-Herald.

A Queer Old Custom.

Among the many stories that are told of superstitious ignorance of bells, the following will probably "take the cake." Near the little village of Raleigh there is a hollow, said to have been caused by an earthquake centuries ago, which is said to have swallowed up a whole village, including the church. To this place the villagers of Raleigh were in the habit of repairing every Christmas day morning, putting their ears to the ground and listening, as they asserted, to the church bell ringing beneath them! What was really heard was the bell of a neighboring church, the sound being borne along the surface of the ground. This custom was in existence, we believe, as late as forty years ago.—London Tit-Bits.

An Apt Reply.

One of Mr. Arthur Balfour's brothers, being an ardent apostle of the aesthetic school, was once discussing the subject of art culture with Lord Salisbury. Finding the prime minister anything but responsive to his theories, he observed, "I am afraid, uncle, you are a sad Philistine." "In that case," Lord Salisbury responded, "I am not the first who has suffered from the jawbone of an ass."—San Francisco Argonaut.

GULLS IN CLOUDS.

Millions of Them on the South Atlantic and Pacific Coasts.

The gulls constitute the feathered ornaments of our harbors and shores, their singularly graceful flight, long, slender wings and striking contrasts in black and white rendering them particularly attractive. On the various portions of the Atlantic and Pacific coasts their breeding places are found, but it is in the south in isolated regions that they are seen to the best advantage and in greatest numbers. Those who are familiar with an occasional white winged form flashing over the waters of the harbor or bay can form but little conception of the appearance of these birds en masse in the homes of their choice. On the southern borders of the United States there are several localities famous as bird collecting places, but none more interesting than Bird key in the Gulf of Mexico.

My first visit to the key was made while examining the wreck of a large ship that had grounded in years before and was a conspicuous object about two miles from the key. From the old wreck I noticed a singular dark cloud hanging low over the island, as though some mysterious smoke had risen from an invisible source and now floated over the spot. Poling the boat over the reef in that direction I soon solved the mystery. The cloud was alive, a mass of active fuss and feathers; birds, birds by the million, so it seemed. One or two came out to meet us, and now a distinct murmuring sound was heard, growing louder and louder as we approached, until soon the roar was deafening.

The terns now left the island by scores and hundreds, flying about the boat with wild cries darting down with menacing gesture. Myriads that had been upon the ground rose, and what had been an indefinite cloud became an almost solid mass of birds, creating a noise like thunder, so that as our boat crunched on the sandy beach, our voices were lost, and we could only hear each other by screaming. This had a singular effect, as on the second every individual ceased its clatter, silence profound seemed to reign, and the birds dived or swooped down as if in fear, to rise again and continue the avian uproar.

The sight was a most remarkable one. The birds were of two kinds—the blade headed tern and the noddy—the former beautiful creatures, with dark heads and bright, intelligent eyes, veritable spirits of the air and gale as they flitted about, while the noddies, which were sparsely represented, were dark, with a pale, light patch upon the head. The gulls laid their eggs upon the ground, the noddies in rude nests upon the trees.

The island or key occupied several acres, perhaps twenty, and was covered with a low scrub of bay cedar nowhere more than ten feet in height, with here and there a patch of cactus or prickly pear. The birds had preempted every foot of the ground, so that it was difficult to step or move in the bush without treading upon the attractive speckled eggs.

The domestic arrangements were simple enough, as the eggs were hatched by the sun and hot sand that cooled but little during the night from the baking it received during the day. The only enemies the birds had were the hermit crabs, that constitute the permanent settlers of the island.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Names of Two Delaware Rivers.

The name "Murderkill," applied to an important stream in Delaware, is explained in popular tradition by a curious story that is told of early settlers in another part of the country. According to the legend, the stream took its name from the fact that an early European explorer, having landed on the bank of the creek, persuaded a dozen natives to drag his cannon by a rope tied about the muzzle and touched off the gun with murderous results when his dupes had got in line. The name, of course, is merely a corruption of the Dutch Motherkill, meaning another stream, because it is a large creek with many tributaries. There is elsewhere in Delaware a Broadkill, which has come to be spelled with a final "n," apparently because the English settlers took the last syllable to be the same with the last syllable of limekiln.—Chicago Herald.

When Spurgeon Took Nothing but Milk.

One day, while dining at the house of a friend, the Rev C. H. Spurgeon was heard to say that he had lived for three months on nothing but milk. This gave rise among the company to several questions as to what prevented him from eating solid food, from what complaint he was suffering, how his strength was maintained, what sort of milk was it, and in what quantity did he take it. After every one's curiosity was fully aroused, Mr. Spurgeon, with a twinkle of fun in his dark eyes, said, "Ask my mother," which reply was followed by roars of laughter, every one feeling they had been taken in, the time being the first three months of his life.—London Tit-Bits.

The Origin of Visiting Cards.

It is said that we owe the invention of visiting cards to the Chinese, and that even so long ago as the Tong dynasty (618 907) visiting cards were used in China. No nation observes so strictly the ceremonies in regard to the paying of visits as the Chinese do, but the cards they use for this purpose are very different from our dainty bits of white paper, being large enough to fold twice, and of a bright red color.—Harper's Young People.

SONOMA, NOVEMBER 28, 1891.

A DISPATCH from New York says: The business of exporting apples from this country to Europe, though of comparatively recent growth, is yearly growing more important. Up to November 7th steamers from American ports had carried to the United Kingdom about 555,000 barrels of apples since the season began. Last year 195,164 barrels were sent abroad, though last year's crop being such a flat failure the comparison is hardly fair. Most of this fruit, 355,336 barrels to be accurate, went to Liverpool. Glasgow has taken 148,000 barrels and London 49,778 barrels, while 788 barrels have been shipped to Hamburg. The freight to Liverpool is about 75 cents a barrel, which, with the low prices prevailing here, makes the business a profitable one to exporters. In the first week of November New York shipped 17,140 barrels, Boston 26,842, and Montreal 41,000, a total of 84,982, against 18,250 for the same week last year. The varities sent abroad are pippins, kings, greenings and snows. Reports from Liverpool to exporters here are to the effect that the demand there is greater than the supply and is increasing constantly, as the merits of the American apple become fully appreciated.

AN agent for an English syndicate will arrive in this state next week, so says a dispatch from Chicago, for the purpose of negotiating the purchase of vineyard property. Should the statement prove correct, and we can see no reason to doubt it, an effort should be made by Sonoma Valley producers to have the representative of the syndicate visit this valley and test our white and red wines, which cannot be beat.

MINNEAPOLIS has secured the next Republican National Convention. San Francisco was a competitor for the honors and received eight votes on the first ballot out of 47 cast by the Republican National Committee. On the seventh and final ballot the metropolis of the Pacific was not in it at all, the result being as follows: Minneapolis, 29; Cincinnati, 15; New York, 3.

POMONA has passed a prohibition ordinance that is very sweeping. To sell, dispense or give away liquor is prohibited by fine or imprisonment, and even the handling of alcoholic stimulants is punishable. The above town should not be confounded with Sonoma which has eleven saloons and no watering troughs for horses.

THE old adobe house built by Captain Smith in 1848, and known as the Bodega ranch house, in this county, was burned on Friday of last week. The only thing that remains to mark the spot that was once an important Russian settlement is a flagstaff erected by Col. John C. Fremont in 1846.

THE State Supreme Court rendered a decision Monday declaring the law passed by the last legislature appropriting $300,000 for the World's Fair as valid. The people of California will now have to pony up to that extent.

MR. AND MRS. CLEVELAND will remove to Lakewood, N. Y., for the winter in a few days. While there is no cause whatever for alarm, it is true, nevertheless, that neither the young mother nor her child is doing as well as could be hoped.

AT Stockton, Tuesday, on the kite shaped track, Frou Frou, Fausta and Athadon lowered their records. All three are yearlings. Frou Frou made a mile in 2:26, Fausta in 2:24¾ and Athadon, a stallion, in 2:28.

Deafness can't be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that we cannot cure by taking Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

The Western Settler's Chosen Specific.

With every advance of emigration into the far West, a new demand is created for Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Newly peopled regions are frequently less salubrious than older settled localities, on account of the miasma which rises from recently cleared land, particularly along the banks of rivers that are subject to freshets. The agricultural or mining emigrant soon learns, when he does not already know, that the Bitters afford the only sure protection against malaria, and those disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels, to which climatic changes, exposure, and unaccustomed or unhealthy water or diet subject him. Consequently he places an estimate upon this great household specific and preventive commensurate with its intrinsic merits, and is careful to keep on hand a restorative and promoter of health so implicitly to be relied upon in time of need.

That Tired Feeling

Is a dangerous condition due directly to depleted or impure blood. It should not be allowed to continue, as in its debility the system is especially liable to serious attacks of illness. It is remarkable how beneficial Hood's Sarsaparilla is in this enervating state.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Possessing just those elements which the system needs and readily seizes, this medicine purifies the blood, and imparts a feeling of serene strength which is comforting and satisfying. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best remedy for that weakness which prevails at change of season, climate or life.

"I have been convinced that Hood's Sarsaparilla is one of the greatest medicines in the world. I say this for the benefit of all other tired out, run down, hard-working women. Hood's Sarsaparilla is not only excellent as a blood purifier, but for all other female complaints, even if of long standing." MRS. M. A. SCARLETT, Northville P. O., Mich.

MRS. GRAHAM'S

CUCUMBER and ELDER FLOWER CREAM.

Is not a cosmetic in the sense in which that term is popularly used, but permanently beautifies. It creates a soft, smooth, clear, velvety skin, and by daily use gradually makes the complexion several shades whiter. It is a constant protection from the effects of sun and wind, and prevents sun burns and freckles, and blackheads will not come while you use it. It cleanses the face far better than soap and water, nourishes and builds up the skin tissues and thus prevents the formation of wrinkles. It gives the freshness, clearness and smoothness of the skin that you had when a little girl. Every lady, young or old ought to use it, as it gives a more youthful appearance to any lady, and that permanently. It contains no acid, powder or alkali and is as painless as dew and as nourishing to the skin as dew is to the flower. Price $1.00, at all druggists and hair-dressers, or at Mrs. Gervaise Graham's establishment, 104 Post Street, San Francisco, where she treates ladies for all blemishes of the face and figure. Ladies at a distance treated by letter. Send stamp for her little book "How to be Beautiful."

DROPPED DEAD.

A. Diminiconi, Seized With Hemorrhage of the Lungs, Expires Instantly.

About one o'clock yesterday morning A. Diminiconi, a well known wine merchant of this place and San Francisco, whose vineyard and wine cellars are located one mile west of Sonoma, died very suddenly of hemorrhage of the lungs.

He came up a few days ago from San Francisco, where he resides permanently with his family, for the purpose of looking after his business interests in this place. He appeared to be in good health and spirits upon retiring Thursday night.

About one o'clock in the morning the foreman of the ranch, who slept in an adjoining room, was awakened by a cry of help from Mr. Diminiconi, and the next instant heard the sound of a falling body. Upon entering the room he found the unfortunate man, partially dressed, lying cold in death on the floor. He lay in a pool of blood which had poured from his mouth just before he fell.

The deceased had evidently been awakened with a sudden hemorrhage of the lungs and had just sufficient strength to call once for aid before he fell to the floor and expired.

Mr. Diminiconi was a member of the firm of Berges & Co., wine merchants of San Francisco, and a few years ago was a partner in the wine house of B. Fraposh & Co. of the same city.

He was a member in good standing of Sonoma Lodge, No. 23, I O. O. F. and leaves a wife and several children to mourn his sudden taking off. Deceased was a native of Switzerland and aged about 47 years.

The remains were taken to San Francisco this morning for interment.

A GIRL TRAMP.

Two Days on the Road Between Santa Rosa and Sonoma Without Food or Shelter.

On Thursday of last week a sixteen-year-old girl was discovered hiding in the bushes off the public highway near Agua Caliente by a lady residing at that place. The girl when she found that she had been seen was at first inclined to retreat, but kind words quieted her fears and she allowed the lady to approach her. Upon being questioned the girl, who was greatly agitated, stated that she had ran away from the home of a merchant in Santa Rosa, named Dickson, in whose family she acted as a domestic. Her mother, she said, was dead and her father resided in the southern part of the State. She claimed to have been unmercifully whipped and abused by the family and in order to escape her tormenters had taken to flight, not knowing or caring in what direction she was going so long as she put distance between herself and Santa Rosa. She had been two days making the journey of twenty miles. In order to prevent pursuit she had avoided the road as much as possible during her travels and took to the brush, and in consequence she was a sight to behold. Her dress and hat were tattered and torn and the soles of her light shoes were worn entirely off. She had been without food and shelter for two days and two nights. The pinched and nigh-starved girl was taken to the home of the lady and kindly cared for.

Last Saturday Mr. Dickson, who had been informed of the girl's whereabouts, came down from Santa Rosa and the following day returned home with the truant.

He says the girl's charges of ill-treatment are not true and that she had no cause to complain as she has always been kindly cared for and treated as one of the family. He is unable to account for her strange conduct.

The stock and furniture of the Star Saloon, located opposite the freight depot, will be sold at public auction next Monday.

The World Enriched.

The facilities of the present day for the production of everything that will conduce to the material welfare and comfort of mankind are almost unlimited and when Syrup of Figs was first produced the world was enriched with the only perfect laxative known, as it is the only remedy which is truly pleasing and refreshing to the taste and prompt and effectual to cleanse the system gently in the Spring time or, in fact, at any time and the better it is known the more popular it becomes.

St. Francis' Church was the scene of a happy event in the lives of two of Sonoma's young people, last Sunday, when Miss Maggie Carriger and Mr. William Gilbert were united in the holy bonds of matrimony by Rev. Father Martin in the presence of a large congregation. Immediately after the ceremony the young people were the recipients of many congratulations from their numerous relatives and friends. The bride was handsomely attired in soft white India silk and to her coiffer was attached a long tulle veil on which rested a lovely wreath of smilax and sweet pea blossoms. The bride was attended by her sister Miss Nellie Carriger, while the best man was Mr. Ernest Gilbert, brother of the groom. Congratulations being ove the bridal party marched down the aisle of the church to the exit, where the party entered carriages and were driven to the residence of the bride's parents, three miles west of Sonoma, where a fine dinner awaited them. The residence was beautifully decorated with the choicest of flowers, ferns and smilax and presented a charming appearance. After the wedding feast the guests enjoyed themselves in various ways until time for the departure of the south-bound train, when the bride appeared in a neat traveling costume ready to start with her young husband on the sea of matrimony. The usual shower of old shoes and rice were thrown after the bridal party as they passed from the house to the carriages in waiting, which were driven to the Donahue railway depot where amid smiles and good wishes the happy couple boarded the train and were soon on their way to San Francisco, where they will spend their honeymoon and make their future home.

A CANARD.

The New York Press Exposes that "Important Bill" Business.

The article credited to the New York Press, in a recent issue of this paper, in which it was alleged that unfavorable action had been taken in the New York Legislature against the Royal Baking Powder, proves to have been a canard, gotten up and circulated by opposition baking powder makers for purposes quite apparent to everyone.

The New York Press, in exposing the fraud, says: "No such legislation as that stated in this article has ever been had in this State—or in any legislature, to our knowledge." The lie is made from whole cloth. The Press disclaims any responsibility for the publication, and objects to being made a party of such methods adopted by some baking powder manufacturers in their efforts to substitute their goods for others now in use.

The Y. M. I. Ball.

The ball given at Union Hall on Thanksgiving eve by the members of the Young Mens Institute was a success in every particular. About fifty couple were present and dancing was kept up long after midnight. The floor managers, Messrs. John E and Wm Kearney, attended to their duties in an admirable manner and in consequence every one present had a fine time. The supper, served by landlord Zeller of the Union, was excellent and went far toward keeping up his reputation as a caterer.

The World's Fair.

Those wishing to go to the World's Fair, and who would not otherwise be able to do so, will now have an opportunity. A leading San Francisco house intends to send deserving persons who comply with their requirements to the great Columbian Exposition, paying their railroad fare both ways, their hotel bills during a seven day's stay in Chicago, besides making it pleasant for them by giving six tickets of admission to the Exposition grounds, two tickets to leading theatres and other privileges. They hope to be the means of sending a representative body of Pacific Coast young men and women of enterprise and character to Chicago, and undoubtedly will have a good many applications as the woods are full of those deserving to go on such a glorious trip. Such an opportunity is almost unheard of, and better still it comes from a responsible house able to pay for a thousand such trips—The Great History Company of San Francisco. Those interested will do well to read their "ad" in another column.

A PHILADELPHIA man who possessed a $5 bill and wanted to blow it in badly, hit upon a novel plan the other day by which to save and spend it both. The bill was given to him by a friend, and he was determined not to part with it. After a lengthy debate with himself he evolved the brilliant scheme of pawning the note. He paid a visit to his uncle, raised $4 62 on the bill and spent it according to his tastes. When further funds came in he redeemed the original note.

MADDENED BY HUNGER.

Parisian Mob Cries Out For Bread

A howling, surging mob of gaunt and famine stricken Parisians rushed through the streets of Paris in the last quarter of the eighteenth century, hurling anathemas on the head of the Minister of Agriculture and muttering curses on the aristocrats who whirled by in their gorgeous equipages. The corn supply had failed and the improvident Parisians, already ground to the earth by the oppressions of the nobility, were the first to suffer from the scarcity. They sent deputations to the king to pray for relief from the gnawing pangs of hunger. Trade was tottering and the pristine glory of France seemed like to be overwhelmed on the rock toward which the corrupt nobility had driven the ship of state. Little was done to relieve the famine and the moans of the hungry ones broke out into a sullen roar that boded no good to the throne of the Capets. The echo of that terrible cry reached the palace at Versailles where Marie Antoniette, the beautiful wife of Louis XVI., held her court. When she heard the threatening voices of her suffering subjects, she asked what they wanted.

"They are crying for bread which they cannot get," answered her courtiers.

"If they cannot buy bread," murmured the dreamy and impractical queen, "why do they not buy cake—it is cheap enough."

This answer was carried to the mob and a derisive cheer went up from the hungry crowd. Mutterings against the luxury of the rich while the poor were starving, swelled little by little. A cry was raised "Down with the baker and the baker's wife," and the Parisians hungry as they were caught the significance of the nick-names. This was the first blow struck at the monarchy. Louis XVI. and Marie Antoinette were known to the Parisian mob as the baker and the baker's wife, and the unfortunate answer of the queen when her subjects were starving was remembered until the guillotine had severed the destinies of the house of Capet from those of France.

Little more than one hundred years later another cry is heard. This time in America. It is not a cry for quantity of bread but of quality. Everywhere adulteration is common in articles of food, and especially the twin poisons ammonia and alum are used to adulterate our baking powders by the greedy and merciless manufacturers. Many States have stringent laws on food adulterations, yet they fail to check the evil. It is on the increase. The last report of the Dairy and Food Commissioner of New Jersey shows 47 per cent. or nearly half of the food preparations submitted to him for examination were adulterated.

Sometimes the adulterants used were found harmless, and in these cases the purchaser would be only swindled, but in many instances rank poisons were found in articles of every day consumption. A large percentage of canned vegetables such as peas and string beans, were found to contain copperas to give a green color, and a number of baking powders have been doctored with ammonia to give an artificial leavening strength and so permit of carrying more waste matter. In these cases there is not only fraud but danger to the public health.

In view of the failure to enforce existing laws, the recent United States Government report recommends the passage of a law in every state requiring the manufacturers of all food preperations to print on every label a list of all the ingredients the article contains. This goes straight to the point. It is not necessary to wait for legislatures to act, Boards of Health of the larger cities can take this matter up and make a thorough examination of all food preparations and expose all such manufacturers as are found adulterating our daily food, and so protect the public.

The Santa Rosa Trotting Horse Club will please accept the thanks of this office for a complimentary ticket to their races which takes place on November 26th, 27th and 28th.

Investigation of Baking Powders, made, by authority of Congress, in the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., furnishes the highest authoritative information as to which powder is the best. The Official Report

A Shorthand Blunder.

One day a lawer dictated a special writ of fieri facias to his shorthand clerk, and, being in a hurry, rushed off to the court with the transcript as soon as it was made, without reading it. When it was presented the dignified judge glanced through it, looked at a certain part of it steadily, and became convulsed with laughter. He then handed the paper back to the lawyer, stating that he was sorry he couldn't grant his petition.

"I think, please the court, that this is according to rule," persisted the attorney.

"Well, this court is unable to do anything for you," replied the judge. "Your request is unreasonable; just take your petition and read it."

The lawyer did so and found that it requested the court to grand "special red fiery faces" to its petitioners.—Exchange.

Pearl Fisheries in the California Gulf.

It is only in the Gulf of California that regular diving gear is employed in connection with the pearl fishery. The beds there were pretty nearly destroyed 150 years ago, when from 300 to 500 pounds of pearls were taken from them yearly. The latter were packed on mules and literally sold by the bushel.—Washington Star.

Misconstrued.

A Boy with a Business Brain.

What possibilities there are for the small boy, especially the boy who is growing up at the present day! A well known city official owns a boy whose eye for business is something out of the ordinary run, as demonstrated by the following. The youngster had evinced a burning desire to go into business for himself, and at length his father agreed to start the boy in the business of selling newspapers on terms of equal partnership, the profits to be equally divided between the two partners.

On the evening of the first day of the new partnership the city official called for an account of the day's sales. As this was part of the contract. "I made eighteen cents today," said the little fellow, "and here's your money," the same time giving his father eight cents. When the latter expressed his surprise at receiving less than his share the boy explained by saying that he had divided the day's profits into two parts, one being placed in one pocket of his coat and the other share finding a resting place in a trousers pocket. "Well," said the boy, "I lost a cent, but it was your cent."

On the following day business was bad, and the little business man disposed of only one paper. When called upon for a division of the profits our embryo man of business explained that he had sold but one paper, but "it was my paper, and of course I get the profit and you don't." What a future for this boy!—Waterbury American.

If, my Doris, I should find
That you again the least inclined
To explore the depths of Mind,
Or of Art—

Should such fancies ever wake,
Understand without mistake,
Though our hearts (perhaps) might break,
We must part.

I'd as soon your little head
Should be lumbered up with lead
As with learning, live or dead,
And with brains.

I have really doted less
On its outline, I confess,
Than the charming Nothingness
It contains.

Now, suppose by hook or crook
People try to make you look
At some tiresome, crabbed book,
Mind you don't!

If they hint you ought to know
Sophocles or Cicero,
Bacon, Goethe or Rousseau,
Say, "I won't!"

Do you think the summer rose
Ever cares or ever knows
By what law she buds and blows
On the stem?

If the peaches on the wall
Must by gravitation fall,
Do you fancy it at all
Troubles them?

Then, as sun or rain is sent,
And the golden hours are spent,
Be unaskingly content
As a star

Yes, be ever of the few
Neither critical nor blue,
But be just the perfect You
That you are!

The Fault of the Operator.

A Kansas operator's error brought out a posse of determined men in search of a supposed desperado some time ago. A young farmer was called away from home for a few days. His wife went to visit her brothers in a town near by during his absence. The third day her husband sent her a message saying, "Big ball, meet me at Wichita tonight."

There was to be a dance and he wanted his wife to attend. When she got the dispatch it said, "Big Bill got me at Wichita tonight."

She interpreted this to mean that her husband had either been captured or shot, or both, by a man named "Big Bill." Her brothers agreed with her, and the whole family and a number of neighbors, all heavily armed, took the first train for Wichita to rescue the husband and hang "Big Bill."

The husband was waiting calmly at the station for his wife. The vigilance committee demanded "Big Bill," and were not at all satisfied with the husband for standing there free and uninjured.—New York Herald.

An Artful Dodger.

A respectably dressed individual had broken into an apartment and was busy clearing out the wardrobe when the occupier, a Mr. Dedieu, entered the the room. With the greatest imaginable coolness the stranger turned round and said "I have been waiting for you, I am ordered to arrest you, and we shall take these clothes with us!"

So saying he packed an overcoat, two pairs of trousers, three summer jackets and several other articles together in a bundle, and said, "Now, come along. I'll carry the bundle, and you can walk on a few paces in front of me, so that the people in the street may not perceive that you are my prisoner."

Mr. Dedjan was so greatly alarmed at his sudden arrest that he implicitly obeyed the stranger's directions. But when, after proceeding some distance down the street he turned round to see what had become of his guardian, the latter had disappeared with the bundle.—Lynn Republican.

A Broadening Profession.

"So you're an actor?" said the man in the counting room to a seedy applicant for pecuniary assistance.

"Yes, sir. I'm an actor."

"Nice business. I'd like to be an actor myself," continued the man, with interest.

"Yes. Most people think that way until they try it."

"Besides the excitement of applause, the traveling you must do broadens the mind so."

"I don't object to that," said the actor softly. "What I object to is the way it broadens the feet," and he looked down at his poor, weary, worn shoes and sighed deeply.—Detroit Free Press.

Photographing a Monkey.

Animals are easily photographed, as a rule. It is not hard to get a picture of a dog or even a cat, and horses usually stand well. A man came once with a monkey which he wanted photographed sitting on his hand. The monkey was a little fellow, and he brought him in his pocket. Just as I went to take the cover off the machine the monkey turned like a flash and jumped into the man's pocket.—Interview with a Photographer.

It is said that there are five citizens of Kawanda Falls, Pa., each bearing the same name, John A Libson. They are not related in the remotest way, as far as they know. It is certainly a remarkable coincidence.

THE Bravest 500 OF '61,

A Wonderful Book made from the records of the War Department.

COMPILED BY BVT. BRIG.-GEN. T. F. Rodenbough.

Of the 2,778,304 men enlisted in the Union Army and Navy, 1861-5, a little less than 2500 were especially recognized by the War Dept., as coming under the Act of Congress, July 12, 1862, for distinguished bravery, which gave them the United States Medal of Honor.

Many of the stories, told by the heroes themselves, of how they won the high distinction, are extremely interesting. That the records of these deeds are almost unknown to their countrymen, but lie buried in the pigeon holes of the War Dept., and in the recesses of their own breasts, seems astonishing.

This book must find a wide sale, for it is full of incidents that will interest every old soldier in the land, and our boys will glory in it. It is an 8vo volume of over 500 pages, with nearly 100 excellent illustrations, made specially for the work.

It reeks of 1-4 time and deserves a place in the library of all who would not altogether forget the glorious past.
